

BIO

Terence C. Halliday

Terence Halliday is Research Professor and Co-Director, Center on Law and Globalization, American Bar Foundation; Honorary Professor, School of Regulation and Global Governance, Australian National University; and Adjunct Professor of Sociology, Northwestern University. He has an M.A. (Massey University, New Zealand), M.A. (University of Toronto), Ph.D. (University of Chicago). He has held teaching and visiting appointments at the Australian National University and the University of Chicago and been a visiting scholar at the Centre for Sociolegal Studies, Wolfson College, Oxford University.

Halliday is a specialist in globalization and law with two main lines of research and writing:

(1) globalization of law and markets with special reference to the interactions between global, national and local lawmakers and implementers. This research has involved fieldwork within the UN Commission on International Trade Law (UNCITRAL), the IMF, the OECD, and in China, Indonesia, South Korea, the U.S., and the U.K. on corporate bankruptcy, secured transactions, carriage of goods by sea, anti-money laundering and combating the financing of terrorism.

(2) globalization of law and basic legal freedoms in the broader context of historical and contemporaneous struggles for political liberalism. This research has involved co-leadership since 1995 of inter-disciplinary international networks of country specialists on Africa, Asia, Latin America, Europe and the Middle East.

Both streams of research have been funded by grants from the National Science Foundation (U.S.) and the American Bar Foundation.

He is the author and editor of eleven books and many articles. His most recent books, published by Cambridge University Press, are Transnational Legal Orders (Halliday & Shaffer, eds., 2015), Criminal Defense in China (Liu & Halliday, 2016), and Global Lawmakers: International Organizations in the Crafting of World Markets (Block-Lieb and Halliday, 2017). Halliday's books and articles have won multiple prizes, including the International Sociological Association's Podgorecki Prize for lifetime achievement in socio-legal scholarship.

Halliday has served as a grant assessor for the National Science Foundation (U.S.), the Australian Research Council, the Economic and Social Research Council (U.K.), the European Research Council/European Commission, and Swiss National Science Foundation.

He has consulted with international public policy bodies on global regulation, governance and lawmaking, including the OECD, the International Monetary Fund, World Bank, UN Commission on International Trade Law, the Government of China and multi-lateral forums in Seoul, Beijing, New Delhi, the U.K. He has briefed the U.S. State Department, UK Foreign and Commonwealth Office, the Council on Foreign Relations, the Chicago Council on Global Affairs, and UN forums on the Security Council and rule of law in New York City. He testified before the U.S. Congress in June 2017 on China's assault on law.

He contributes to public debate on law and rights in China through international media, including the New York Times, Wall St. Journal, Guardian, Al Jazeera and the social media. He is a member of the panel on International Organizations and Technologies of Governance, International Panel on Social Progress, and a member of the Chicago Committee, Human Rights Watch.
